All-candidates meeting

NDP candidate trips on Bark Lake issue

by Andrew Milne

Close to one hundred people turned out for an all-candidates meeting May 16, to hear Progressive-Conservative incumbent Chris Hodgson, Liberal challenger Sharon McCrae, and NDP challenger Cathy Vainio square off.

Probably the most memorable event of the night was a discussion on the closure of the Bark Lake Leadership Centre, in which it became quite clear Vainio had been unprepared to discuss the issue. For that matter, Vainio seemed poorly prepared to discuss any of the local issues.

Otherwise, the debate revealed few clear differences between the candidates in terms of policies, other than those native to their party platforms.

Bark Lake

The Bark Lake Leadership Centre is a Ministry of Culture, Tourism, and Recreation (MCTR) facility located in the Irondale region. In mid-April the staff of the centre was informed by the MCTR that the facility would be closed, effective August 31 of this year. The staff reacted with surprise, as the centre had been, in their words, on track with a cost recovery plan to make the centre self-supporting in the year 1998, and was half way there. In addition, some $5 million of capital investment had been made in the facilities by the government over the last few years to make this possible.

More than water jugs separated the opinions of the three main candidates in the June 8 provincial election as they addressed the audience at an all-candidates meeting Tuesday at Hyland Crest. The incumbent, Progressive Conservative candidate Chris Hodgson, left, and Liberal standard bearer Sharon McCrae, right, flank NDP hopeful Cathy Vainio as she responds to a question from the audience.

The candidates first faced the issue when a recently-resigned employee of the facility, one George Simmons of Snowdon, (also reeve of that township) criticized Vainio's assertion that an NDP government would strive for less painful measures in keeping spending in line, aiming for a freezing of expenditures rather than making drastic cuts.

Said Simmons, "I'd just like to give you a little information on your cutting and slashing. As of today I've handed in my resignation as a civil servant, due to the cutting and slashing at Bark Lake.

The problem with the NDP is complete confusion at this stage. And I'll give you an example: last month the premier's office asked the director, with all these letters coming in, what was happening with Participants in the Sneaker Day Walk show they are stepping out in style as they pose for a photo on Minden's Sunnyside Bridge. The group was participating in a walk through the downtown area as part of a program to heighten awareness of the value of regular daily exercise. Organizers pointed out that a healthy lifestyle does not have to include a rigorous regime of exercise, but that a regular routine of walking, for example, can help improve one's overall well-being. Healthy living brochures and a blood pressure test were included in the event organized through the Haliburton Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Unit and a community committee. Close to 100 took part in the walk and were rewarded with a certificate recognizing their participation.

Meeting will discuss doctor shortage

Area residents served by the Minden medical community will have an opportunity Wednesday, to discover what is being done to resolve the shortage of doctors the community has experienced this year. A public meeting has been called by the Community Committee for Physicians, to explain what has taken place and the steps that are being taken to ensure the community does not find itself in this position again.

"When the crisis first broke in February, and the hours of operation of the emergency department at the Minden Hospital were reduced, a group of concerned citizens from throughout the area met to deal with the situation," spokesman Jack Brezina explained. "The committee members have been actively lobbying the Ministry of Health, St. Joseph's Hospital and its local representatives, the District Health Council and the Acting Health Services Board in an effort to resolve the situation."

He noted that the effort to attract doctors to the area is not a simple task. "Many other communities the size of ours and larger find themselves in the same situation and so the competition for doctors is intense." He explained the group has taken a three-pronged approach to the crisis, attempting to deal with the immediate shortage; provide an interim solution to find family physicians to settle here permanently; and create an environment that, in the long-term, will ensure the community will not find itself in this situation again.

Since doctors based in Minden have served the populations of the northern Victoria and Peterborough counties, individuals from these areas are invited to attend the meeting as well. "Anyone who has relied on the medical community based in Minden is affected by the current situation and is welcome to attend," Brezina said.

Noting that the committee has been operating without much public profile, Brezina said the members felt it would be appropriate to host a meeting so the public can be brought up to date on what has been accomplished. "We have achieved some goals through our efforts but there is still much to be done," Brezina explained. "We hope that involving the public in our efforts at this point will help us in achieving our goals."

The meeting is scheduled for Wednesday night May 24, starting at 7 p.m., at the Archie Stouffer Elementary School auditorium.

JOINING THE PARADE: The Minden Sneaker Day Walk drew close to 100 participants Tuesday, including Minden OPP Staff Sergeant Dennis Eddington. The police officer traded his regulation boots for a pair of sneakers so he could be right in step with the lunch-time crowd. Also taking part in the walk were MPP Chris Hodgson, Haliburton County Warden Ross Rabjohn, and Reeves Jean Anthon and Jim McMahon among others.

Candidates quizzed on jobs, health care, education

Bark Lake. It is sad in this day and age that the Premier's office doesn't know about the closing of Bark Lake."

Vainio, apparently unaware Bark Lake was a provincial facility, had responded later that if the government did not know about the closure, this could be laid at the door of Hodgson, since he was MPP for the region.

"It looks," she had said, "like there may have been some effort to make [Ontario premier Bob] Rae's government look as if it had egg on its face. I think — and I don't want to sound preachy — the responsibility of the citizens is to bring their concerns to their MPP, and he then relays them to the government. And I think that's the usual process. But to say 'Oh Bob Rae didn't hear about it' — well he can't possibly hear about it unless the member takes that matter forward."

McCrae then responded "Perhaps we should indulge Cathy to inform her this was a government run facility, and Bob Rae should have been the first one to know, not the last."

All candidates seemed to answer to a question from Brian Dean of the Chamber of Commerce that they and their parties would be supportive of providing bridging financing for initiatives put forward by local groups to take over the facility, provided the project appeared sound.

'Jobs and the Deficit'

All candidates, not too surprisingly, spoke to the issues of unemployment. Hodgson spoke especially of a need for coordination, and concerted solutions on the part of the government for bringing down the deficit, and made specific promises from the Progressive-Conservative platform, including a promise to scrap the employer health tax for businesses with annual payrolls less than $400,000. McCrae stated in opening that her primary concerns have to be jobs and the deficit, and that all other issues ultimately relate to these concerns. Vainio noted, in relation to concerns over Bark Lake and health care, that on the one hand, people seem to be demanding service delivery, and then on the other, applaud when the opposition promises drastic cuts. Said Vainio, "When you go to your new government, either you're going to get some hearing [or]... if you have a government who says they're going to cut 30 percent across the board, you can forget about even approaching them. You're frustrated now. You'll certainly be frustrated if Bob Rae and his government are not returned."

With images of Hyland Crest's residents looking over his shoulder, and the audience in the foreground, Bexley Reeve Fred Brecht asks the candidates about health care in the northern part of Victoria-Haliburton.

Health Care

Health care was also discussed. Hospitals in the Haliburton County region are currently undergoing the Ministry of Health (MOH) 'rationalisation process', in which, in attempts to streamline and make services more efficient, hospitals across the province have been closed or amalgamated with neighbouring facilities. Recently, the local Acting Health Services Board (AHSB) was instructed by the MOH to consolidate acute care beds in the region in either Haliburton or Minden. The board, in a difficult and divisive compromise, settled on Haliburton, with the caveat that emergency and long-term services of some form be left in Minden. The MOH readily approved the former, and is hedging on the latter, leaving Minden residents to worry that they will be left with nothing whatsoever. Furthermore, in mid-April, one of Minden's two remaining doctors qualified to staff the wards of Minden hospital left town unexpectedly. St. Joseph's of Peterborough, which administers the Minden hospital, retained an emergency staffing service to keep the emergency ward open for the present, but closed the in-patient beds — effectively reducing by a half the number of in-patient beds in the county — and stated that after five weeks (up May 31), a more permanent solution would have to be found. Fear is widespread that this more permanent solution will be the final closing of the hospital.

Not one of the candidates went so far as to promise that they would oppose closure of the facility, or even closures in general. Specifically asked, "If elected will you publicly oppose hospital bed closure, reduction in services, restriction in number, which in fact reduce the quality and availability of future care", none of them exactly said "yes".

Hodgson, in response to the question, quoted his party's policy. "We're going to seal the health care envelope as to creating healthy communities," he said. "If we find efficiencies within those envelopes, whether it be local or across the province, those savings stay in the system to help health care. In our county we have an opportunity to be a model. If we can provide better services than we have today, and save money doing it, then the monies will stay to provide more services for the rest of Haliburton County."

Hodgson also said the Progressive-Conservatives would endorse the recommendations of the recent Scott report, an MOH, Ontario Medical Association and Ontario Hospital Association sponsored fact finder's report on doctors in rural communities, which proposes that doctor payment schedules be amended to make it more practical and profitable for doctors in rural communities to staff 24-hour emergency departments.

McCrae, who says that as a long-time member of the board of the local health unit she has shown a commitment to health care, responding to the same question, said that the provincial Liberals' proposed relaxation of party discipline would permit her to speak as a voice for the rural community regardless of her party's line on such matters, and said, "I found it rewarding to realize that the hospital in the home situation saved us as taxpayers about $420 a day. But that doesn't always serve the needs of our community, and certainly over the past year I've... kept informed over the past year about the problems in this community, and I recognize that we've got to have the very best of care in rural Ontario, particularly in this community, because we've got the highest percentage of seniors, and we've got to make sure those people feel secure in this community that the health care system is going to be stable because it's going to have a significant impact on the economics of the whole area."

McCrae had earlier also said a Liberal government would scrap the current (NDP) government's amendments to long-term care legislation, and that she personally opposes the creation of Multi-Service Agencies — a device proposed by the NDP to centralize and rationalize social and health services in communities, because she feels such measures will alienate the many volunteers which are currently the heart of many services under the MSA umbrella.

Vainio, by comparison, said "I know there are a lot of problems organizing as we move away from strictly a hospital based system and to more home care at the Multi-Service Agencies being set up. I think that's the way I would like to see medical services being facilitated, rather than just strictly as we have everyone move to a hospital whether it be for emergency or chronic or for acute care. And I think the way the policy is playing

Bioregionalism attempts to come to grips with our diversity

Capturing the many facets of the Highlands

by Andrew Milne

"You name it, we're mapping it."

That's Anna Gibson speaking. In charge of the Haliburton Highlands Bioregional Atlas project, Gibson and assistant Eric Laphardt will be spending the next few months mapping regions of the Highlands with the goal of understanding and describing the region from a Bioregional perspective.

Bioregionalism, explains Gibson, is as much an approach to study as a discipline. Nebulous, amorphous, and as ever-changing in definition as the phenomena it deals with, the field is a complex synthesis of many other fields of study, including ecology, economics, anthropology, and archaeology.

"Bioregionalism," says Gibson, "is the study of the interaction between the human and the nonhuman environment — putting culture and nature together and understanding how to live within a place... It's a new and a very old idea. It's the way people lived on the earth forever before industrialisation came along. It's a re-realization of that idea — how to live in a place, how to shape our communities to the place we live."

"It's about becoming conscious of the place in which you live," she says. "Not only in terms of the ecology of the area, but in terms of the cultural and historical progression — why the area is there, the history of the land use, the history of the settlement, how people came to be there and how they're interacting now, the political ramifications of the area, and looking towards community, empowerment, in terms of how the area can become more sustainably connected to the natural resources."

The atlas project, says Gibson, spun out of Trent University's Bioregionalism program, which both she and Laphardt attended. This year and for the next two, the goal will be to put together a 30 plate atlas of this region, mapping things as diverse as historical settlement patterns, watersheds, parishes, historical development, waste management practices, even economic development.

They're still looking for sponsors to do the maps, however. This year, says Gibson, "We're doing the first ten maps that we had sponsors for. The first ones are maps you'd find at the beginning of any atlas — soils, topography, geology, climate, forest composition, those sorts of things. We have a person interested in historical settlement, and another map on transportation system development in the region. We have a map on prehistoric archaeological potential. We have past and potential landfill sites, a map about the Donald chemical plant, and the effects it's had on the surrounding area. A map of the communications networks, like phone lines, TV/radio transmitters, what the receiving areas are — who owns what, what's being broadcast. And those are the ones we have a handle on."

Gibson says she hopes the project will be of benefit to this area for a number of reasons. First, she notes, with new provincial legislation on the books which requires local governments to develop official plans, data of this kind would be essential. Second, upcoming curriculum requirements are expected to require the school system to teach environmental education with a regional and local component.

And right now, says Gibson, very little is known about this region from any of the perspectives her project addresses. Says Gibson, "Right now there's no information. Basically if you look on any soil series map, everything to the North, starting at about Haliburton County, doesn't exist. The research just wasn't done. That's a big problem. Haliburton is a big black hole in a lot of information sources."

Eric Laphardt and Anna Gibson will be attempting to chart the many unique facets of the Haliburton Highlands, its people and their surroundings.

The Muskoka MNR's Bell Long Ranger II was at the Minden fairgrounds recently to pick up Lake Manitou Lake Trout for stocking runs. The helicopter is used to stock lakes without convenient boat access, and too small to land a pontoon-equipped plane. It hovers a few feet from the surface and, opening the tanks with a cable release system, drops the yearling trout. Photos below left depict (from top) MNR personnel loading the fish into the transfer tube, pilot Doug Holtby and MNR area technician Heidi Williams with the transfer tube, and Holtby with the helicopter's cable-operated tanks during loading. Lack of doctors and bed closures discussed

Kinmount area MPP asked to help with hospital crisis

by Andrew Milne

Hastings-Peterborough MPP Elmer Buchanan says the major stumbling block in getting doctors into rural communities is negotiations with the Ontario Medical Association (OMA).

Buchanan heard concerns that the recent decision by the Acting Health Services Board (AHSB) to locate the acute care beds in Haliburton as opposed to Minden was due to regional rivalries and regional bias, and said that if this is so, it is no basis on which to make such a decision.

Buchanan spoke to concerned citizens of the northern regions of his riding May 18 at a campaign stop at the Northwood Restaurant south of Kinmount, and to AHSB member and Minden resident Doug Campbell, present to ask Buchanan to petition health minister Ruth Grier to answer the letter of the eight reeves from townships in the Minden hospital catchment area.

The Minden hospital's in-patient ward was closed in mid-April following the sudden departure of one of only two doctors then available to staff the hospital's rotation schedule. At the suggestion of a community group, the board of Peterborough's St. Joseph's Hospital, which administers the Minden facility, retained an emergency staffing service to provide doctors to keep the emergency ward open, but closed the in-patient ward. A decision on a more long-term solution, which may well include closing the hospital altogether, is to be taken by May 31.

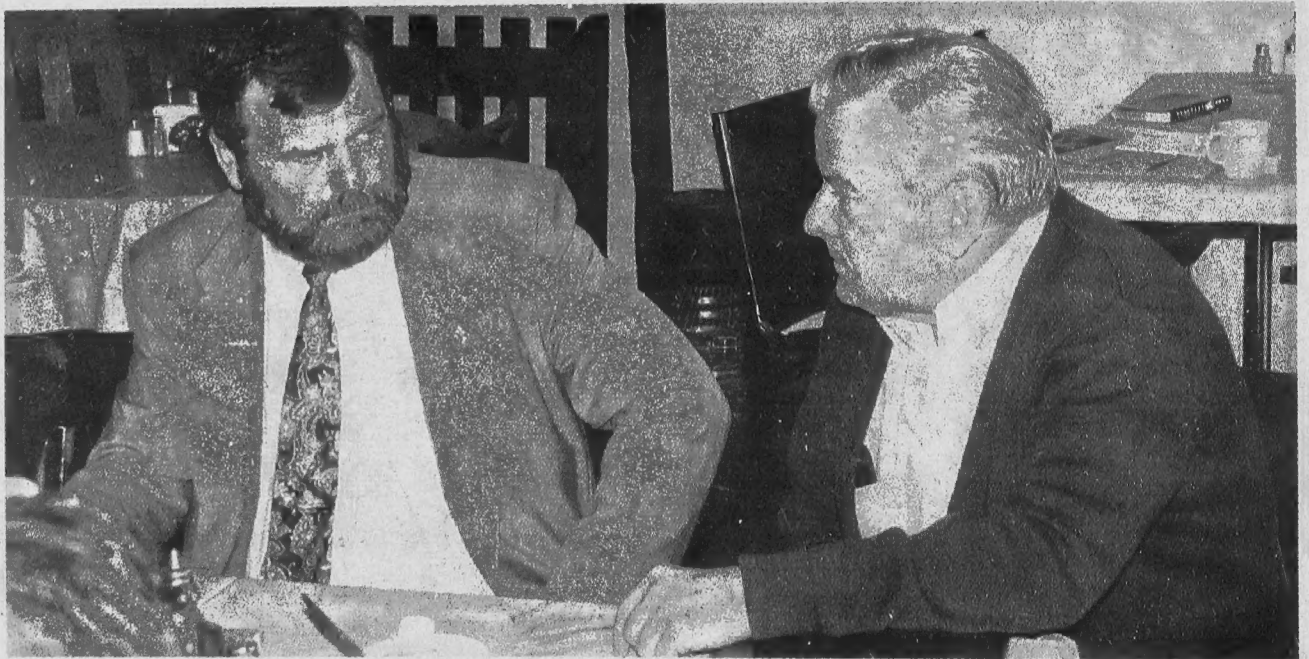

Concerned groups have pointed out the action effectively halved the number of in-patient beds in Haliburton County and area, and closing the hospital altogether would leave a lengthy stretch of the Highway 35 north of Lindsay without a hospital.

The reeves of the eight townships in the hospital's catchment area gathered to petition Grier to meet with them following these developments. They sent a letter May 1, and say they have yet to hear in response from her.

Buchanan was unable to promise that he could do anything to convince Grier to answer the letter, but said he would try. Of attracting doctors to rural areas, Buchanan said, "It's a matter of implementation. The problem we've got here is trying to get the OMA to realize there's a rural Ontario as well. We've tried to negotiate. We've tried to get some different payment schedules for rural doctors, and they're not interested, quite frankly. That led to an association of rural doctors a couple years ago. They got together a couple of years ago and tried to have their own association, but unfortunately it's not formal, or not very formal. It's a loose knit group, so when it comes time for the government to negotiate, they always have to go back to the OMA, and it tends to be very much London, Toronto, and Ottawa doctors trying to dictate what's going on in the world."

"Outside of those areas," he said, "there is a problem with doctors, and we don't think just allowing wide-open billing is the answer. We're going to have to come up with a new scheme in order to get doctors to the areas. But you don't just snap your fingers — there aren't a lot of doctors that are interested."

Asked if making the decision to close Minden hospital in five weeks due to such a crisis is a sensible way to administer the hospital system, Buchanan said no, it wasn't, that overall costs and benefits have to be considered, including increased cost of ambulance travel if hospitals are located further and further apart, and that health care has to be looked at from the overall benefits to the rural community as a whole.

Minden resident and health care advocate Doug Campbell, right, asked Hastings-Peterborough MPP Elmer Buchanan (NDP) for help in resolving the crisis at the local Hospital. Residents of the northern portion of Peterborough County, southeast of Kinmount, are part of the area served by the Minden Hospital and medical community. Buchanan was in Kinmount Thursday on a campaign tour of his riding.

Said Buchanan, "In my view, if you look at it and take the global perspective, if you want to save money, it's possible to deliver some of these services locally and save money overall. If you've got to transport everybody with any problem long distances, even for things like fractures and so on, you're costing the system — the big system — a lot of money."

"So if you're asking if you close it what's the opportunity to reopen it," he continued, "we have to look at the whole issue of rural care — we're going to have to look at the doctors issue, how to keep doctors in rural areas, how does the nurse practitioner fit in, and the ambulance services need to be looked at too. But it needs to be looked at from the concept of rural health care — we can't have one area trying to get something at the expense of other areas. And I suspect that's part of the problem here — not all of it."

....and then there were two

If there was any doubt, going into Tuesday's all candidates meeting, that the provincial election was a two-way race in Victoria-Haliburton, those doubts were firmly put to rest by the end of the evening. NDP hopeful Cathy Vainio found herself up a creek (or perhaps that should read adrift on a lake) without a paddle. On the issue of the recent announcement of the closing of the government-run Bark Lake facility, the candidate was obviously poorly informed. Her attempt to respond to a number of questions from the audience left little doubt that she was unaware of the impact the announcement has on this area or the role the government, under her party's banner, had in the closure. While her Bark Lake responses were the telling moments for Vainio, her knowledge of the other challenges facing the area were equally vague and uniformed.

To be fair, the candidate had received her party's nomination a mere eight days before she appeared on the Hyland Crest stage. However, that in itself speaks volumes on how seriously the New Democratic Party takes its chances in this riding.

That having been said, the riding appears to be well served by the other two mainstream candidates. Incumbent Chris Hodgson, representing the Progressive Conservatives, and Sharon McCrae under the Liberal banner were well versed in the problems facing this part of the riding. And that was simply not a matter of having done their homework. Obviously Mr. Hodgson has the advantage of having spent the last 14 months dealing on a daily basis, with the concerns of his constituents. We expect someone in that position to have some answers. However it should be pointed out that Liberal candidate Sharon McCrae has been taking an active interest in the riding as well, hosting public get-togethers, attending meetings and talking to the people she hopes to represent.

On Tuesday evening both the Liberal and Conservative candidates provided answers and solutions based on a good grounding of the problems this portion of the riding faces. Constituents would be well advised to listen carefully to what these two hopefuls have to say over the next two and half weeks and make their choice based on how their beliefs line up with what the two have to offer.

At this point, we suggest the riding will be well served if either is successful on June 8.

Peace of mind

Editor:

Having spent two months of almost every year since 1918 in Stanhope Township, I am vitally concerned with your concerns. And of these at the moment, the Minden Hospital and its services loom large.

I well remember a young nephew's accident in 1925 and the long ride from Boshkung Lake to the nearest hospital in Haliburton. In contrast, four occasions - the latest one only last summer - when the Minden Hospital and its doctors have been a godsend, make the writing of this letter imperative. In numerous lesser crises, the availability of hospital services - and temporary hospitalization - has made the difference between peace of mind (and body) and anxious pain.

Surely with the growth and expansion of other facilities and attractions, Minden, the County Town of Haliburton, cannot be deprived of one so vital to the inhabitants of the area and those who, in increasing numbers, are flocking to it at all seasons.

Yours earnestly,
Grace Irwin,
Loon Echo Island,
Carnarvon.

Heirloom returned

Editor:

Thanks to The Times (May 8 edition) for assisting in the safe return of my truncheon, a valued family item. On Tuesday, May 9, I received a phone call from Joe Dollo, an employee of the Municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden, informing me that he had, with the help of a friend, found my special constable's night stick which has been in my family for over 200 years.

Thank-you Joe -- you have a lot of your Dad in you. Thanks to Susan and The Times.

Time for David Suzuki's reality check

Editor:

A response to Development vs Indigenous Culture (David Suzuki May 15):

David Suzuki paints a pretty picture of the three aboriginal peoples that have for thousands of years depended on the forest for their food, medicines and materials. I marvel at this romantic setting in the middle of nowhere, filled with smiling happy natives living off the land.

Wouldn't it be nice and just think, the noble Shaman David Suzuki can show us the way!

Sorry Suzuki - Reality check!

As Suzuki noted, "Ham-mocks and mosquito nets are slung in the tiny school..." for him and his biodegradable groupies. These nets etc., were probably made of nylon and the boat motor didn't come from the forest either! The native peoples have a simpler life with almost no problems to consider. Their sick, who do not get well from boiled bug parts and the Shaman's rattles and mask, just die an agonizing slow death. They do not have to care for senior citizens either because the unsanitary conditions, undrinkable water and the mercy of a savage jungle have eliminated almost all of them before their 35th birthday.

If you would like your next three-course meal to be dirt, maggots and a half-burnt tiger, then support David Suzuki's anti-industrial revolution.

I am a western man who knows that everything I need to survive can be created by man from the raw materials around him. I am grateful for the factory smokestack that has brought me: 1. The surgeon's scalpel; 2. The refrigerator. 3. Central heating. 4. Clean tap water. 5. Medicines. 6. The police officer's, jail, car and gun etc.

Please consider everything around you that makes your life better and then think of the world that the Closet Dictator David Suzuki would force us to live in.

It's either a bug-infested mud hovel with you at the mercy of the environment or a nice home with things to make your life better than any savage witch doctor could every dream of.

Respectfully,

Jim Battarbee,
Mountain Lake.

*We live in an age when pizza gets
To your house before the police.*

Jeff Marder

What would you say is Italy's greatest gift to civilization?

The masterpieces of Michelangelo?

The music of Rossini or Verdi?

The machinations of Machiavelli? The larynx of Caruso? The films of Fellini?

How about the pizza?

Hard to think of any Italian creation that's touched more minds -- and bellies -- around the world. You want statistics? Consider this: in an average day, Canadians buy approximately $500,000 worth of Pizza Pizza pizzas. (No, I'm not stuttering. Pizza Pizza is a chain.)

Half a million dollars worth. That works out to approximately 7000 kilograms of cheese, 6000 kilograms of dough, and about 5000 litres of tomato sauce.

And that's just Pizza Pizza. Imagine the numbers when you factor in Pizza Delight, Pizza Hut, Pizza Palace, Pizza Heaven, Piece o' Pizza and all the other pizza parlours in the phone book.

Ah -- but is the pizza really Italian? For years, conspiracy theorists like to hint that, as surely as JFK was killed by a cabal of Masonic curlers from Gimli, so the pizza is not Italian, but North American. Show a real Italian one of our pizzas, they claimed, and they wouldn't even recognize it.

Well the American Firsters were right. And wrong. A citizen of Florence or Venice might have trouble identifying, say, a deep-dish double cheese with pineapple slices in a cardboard box...but that doesn't mean Italians don't know pizza. In Italy, pizza is a thin bread, flavoured with oil and salt. Sometimes they might toss in a few tomatoes or anchovies as a garnish, but generally speaking you'd have trouble finding in Italy any of the high-rise pizza condos we're used to on this side of the water.

At least, that's the way I found it. I haven't been to Italy in 25 years. Perhaps nowadays the "American" pizza is as common as Coca Cola.

One thing is certain -- the pizza is solidly entrenched as a food favourite. It's reputation is secure -- and not just in your home town or mine. Over in Hong Kong a publisher by the name of Jimmy Lai has just hired ten new reporters for a newspaper he's about to launch. Where did he find candidates for the ten jobs?

In pizza delivery vans. Reason: traffic congestion is the number one nightmare in Hong Kong -- and who knows better how to de-ke-through traffic jams than a pizza delivery man?

"We feel the pizza delivery boys know how to arrive at a spot the fastest", says Lai, "the details can be chased by ordinary reporters."

Makes sense. I foresee the day when pizza deliverers will be taking polls, selling encyclopedias and acting as midwives. You think the guy at the door with your pizza is just some high school kid trying to make a few bucks after school? Don't be so sure.

Some kids who deliver for Domino's are also gathering statistics. Here's what Domino's analysts already know about you:

- men wearing muscle shirts when answering the door order pepperoni three times more often than any other topping.

- people who have pierced eyebrows, lips or noses ask for vegetarian topping 23 percent more often than meat topping.

- if you have wind chimes on your porch, chances are 4 to 1 that you've ordered olives on your pizza.

Most popular TV shows to eat pizza by? Melrose Place for vegans; Roseanne for carnivores.

The biggest hour for pizza delivery ever? The slo-mo pursuit of you-know-who's white Ford Bronco down the freeway.

Pizza -- more than just a snack food. A window on your world.

Now...will that be with or without anchovies?

TREE TO GET READY

We received an interesting promotional idea from PineStone Resort the other day in the mail. The package was contained in a wide round tube with a sticker on it indicating there was a tree inside. Sure enough, the tube contained a pine seedling with the roots wrapped in a plastic bag and complete instructions for the planting the tree. Also included in the package was a press release announcing a number of the resort's special summer programs. It was a clever promotion gimmick that caught our eye...hopefully it will work for the resort.

A NEW ADDITION

Speaking of PineStone, Westside Jug City has opened a mini convenience and souvenir gift shop in the resort. The store, called Treats 'N' Treasures, will provide a full range of products for visitors to the resort as well as gifts and souvenirs of the area and Ontario. The shop will be open 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily.

RENT-ALL & ICE CREAM

A welcome goes out to John and Rita Graham the proprietors of The Rent-All Store and Happy Daze Ice Cream Parlour. The new businesses are located in a portion of the former IGA building (now Spot 97) next to Highlands Plumbing on Minden's Main Street. The Rent-All store offers the usual line of tools and equipment for individuals who only need the items on a temporary basis.

The Happy Daze Ice Cream Parlour as the name implies, takes you back a couple of decades to the days of bobby socks and soda jerks. The ice cream parlour will feature ice cream treats, pop and other specialities perfect for the summer season.

CAT & DOGS

Belated welcome to the new owners of Paulmac Pet Foods in the Heritage Plaza. Elizabeth and Grant Cowan took over the store earlier this year and have been busy meeting the needs of pets owners in the area. The store includes a complete line of pet food. Drop in a say hello.

ANOTHER OPENING

KUSHOG LAKE MARINE

Welcome to the new owners of Kushog Lake Marine, Bruce and Brenda Newell. The Newells took over recently and have been busy preparing for the summer boating rush. If the name Newell sounds familiar, there is a good reason. Bruce's dad, Clifford, is a Haliburton County native.....welcome home!

Sign project still needs help

M.A.B.A.

by Gary Bloor

It was just over a year ago that the Minden Area Business Association (MABA) started a project to create and erect new "Welcome To Minden" signs on Highway 35, north and south of the community.

The project is still in the works, and although you haven't heard about it lately, the idea is very much alive. In fact, the signs are ready to be sand-blasted and painted.

The signs have been prepared under the supervision of local sign maker Tara Lowe. Barry Cray of the Gordon A Monk Funeral Home, has offered his talents in constructing the bases for the sign posts.

Laurie Roberts of Perfect Prints in Minden has been helping by contacting various provincial ministries in search of any provincial assistance that might be available to complete the project.

The association has not forgotten those who have contributed to the project. Certificates will be presented to these businesses and individuals recognizing their support.

However, at the moment every dollar raised must be used to complete the signs and pay for the cost of installing them.

We are fortunate to have some labour and materials donated, but more is needed. The signs could be erected within a month if we can raise the additional funds.

So far the sign fund has received $4,700, including some money earned in interest. An additional $5,300 is needed to see the project through to completion.

You will recall, these are beautiful coloured signs that make just the right statement as visitors approach the community from the north or south. The signs are made of cedar, erected on a stone base. They are weather protected and will blend in nicely with the natural beauty of the area.

The immediate need is for $900 to sandblast the signs so they can be painted. The balance is for labour and material and those involved have graciously offered to allow the project to go ahead while the fund-raising continues.

If you have contributed to this project, again our sincere thanks. If you would like to help us bring the sign project to completion, please let us know. Contact Gary Bloor at 286-4279 or 286-2425; Laurie Roberts at 286-6011; or Barry Cray at 286-2181.

Music Night '95

The Grade 8 Band performed during Music Night '95 at Archie Stouffer Elementary School last Wednesday evening. The evening's entertainment featured several Grade 7 and 8 bands, duets and soloists. The performers played to a large and appreciative audience in the school gym.

Natasha Gartshore was one of the many solo performers at Music Night '95. She is seen here playing "I'd Like to Teach the World to Sing."

Candidates stake out campaign territory

out now is yes, it's turbulent over the short term, but I think in the end with everyone getting involved and sorting out how the organization is going to be worked out, I think we'll have a better system at the end of that process."

None of the candidates could promise the eight reeves of townships in the catchment area of the Minden hospital they could get them the audience with Health Minister Ruth Grier they've been looking for since May 1. Grier, say the reeves, has not even acknowledged receipt of their letter yet. Hodgson and McCrae both stood on their records, saying they had been in contact with Grier and their parties' health care critics. Vainio, by contrast, asked why the AHSB and the board of St. Joseph's hadn't been more proactive in the lobbying effort, and why the reeves had been expected to fight alone on the issues.

Education, other issues

Education was also discussed. Vainio stated that she believed an NDP government would move in the next four years to funding education through income tax rather than through local rates. Hodgson said he felt a more gradual move is more practical, but ultimately necessary and beneficial for regions like Haliburton county. McCrae was less definite, noting that the money would have to come from somewhere, and increases in other taxes might also have detrimental effects on communities as well. The funding of education in Haliburton county has long been an issue because the valuable cottage country land, the relatively scant industrial and commercial sectors of the economy, and seasonal population mean that the county's residential ratepayers pay a high proportion of the education budget directly through local taxes, an often heavy burden for people on fixed incomes. In addition:

— Hodgson and McCrae said they oppose amalgamation of school boards on the grounds that it would save no money. Vainio did not speak to the issue.

— Hodgson and McCrae both said their parties would not implement the Royal Commission on Learning's proposal for early childhood education in the school systems. Vainio said that with funding shortfalls from the federal transfer payments, the provincial government probably wouldn't be able to afford them in any case.

— All three candidates said they oppose tighter gun control restrictions proposed at the federal level, and are opposed to tighter restrictions in general.

The provincial election is June 8. Six candidates are known to have picked up nomination papers. In addition to the three above are, Brad Bradamore (Independent), Brad Medd (Family Coalition Party), and Charlie Olito (Confederation of Regions).

Candidates will meet again in Kinmount

An all candidates meeting will be held at the Kinmount Community Centre on Tuesday, June 6, starting at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting is sponsored by the Kinmount Committee for Planning and Economic Development.

Visioning exercise summary presented at county council

The County of Haliburton has been the first to undertake a "visioning exercise" since the proclamation of Bill 163. A visioning exercise is the preliminary step on the way to formulating a full Strategic Plan for the county.

A county visioning workshop was held on April 28 at the Bark Lake Leadership Centre.

A summary of the workshop was presented at the county council meeting last week.

The intention of the workshop was to meet four objectives, which were:

- To confirm the future of county government in Haliburton County
- To prioritize the issues facing county government
- To determine the skills and experience level necessary for new staff; and
- To enable members of county council to share points of view while building a sense of co-operation and teamwork.

Council members were asked to identify what they viewed as priority issues.

The following were highlighted as issues requiring immediate action from council:

- County council working together as a cohesive unit
 - Fiscal responsibility
 - Planning for the future
 - Future size and role of county council by examining restructuring options, eliminating county/lower tier duplication and streamlining county committee structure and procedures
 - Increasing county staff morale -- by attaining a full staff complement, establishing more open lines of communication between elected and appointed officials and by completing the renovations to the county building
 - Developing strong, healthy relationships with other levels of government.

Councillors were asked to identify what they value in the county, which features they would like to see retained, enhanced and developed.

The natural pristine beauty of the area was high on the list. Local culture and history as well as community improvement projects were called for.

Quality of life was another important factor. Vibrant communities with strong identity and the abundant level of volunteers were cited.

The promotion of better government at less cost was seen as something that could be expanded upon. Value for public expenditures and wise stewardship of resources were two areas that it was agreed should be retained and enhanced.

A healthy business environment is another important issue to council members. Growth in tourism and diversity of local skills and talents were recognized as assets to the county.

Recognition of current trends was another topic that was explored.

Land use conversion was discussed, regarding the increase in retirees in the county, partly because of the fact that "baby boomers" are retiring early. The result will be a continued increase in demand for year-round services.

The outward migration of working families is resulting in a higher average age of Haliburton County residents and a corresponding increase in the need for social services.

Because the public will continue to demand fiscal responsibility, and in light of a continued decrease in transfer funds from higher levels of government, there is a need to eliminate duplication of services.

The emerging trend of ECOTourism is a concern be-

Haliburton County Council notes

Architects narrowed down

Seven proposals for the renovations and addition to the County Building were received from architect firms. Those seven were narrowed down to three by a committee of all county council members before the regular meeting on May 17.

Representatives from those three companies will be invited to a special meeting on May 25 at the Minden Community Centre to answer questions from the council members. Acting county administrator Ross Rigney says it is hoped that a decision on which architect firm will be hired to do the job can be made at that meeting.

Support in principle

The county has offered its support in principle (not necessarily financial support) to the Family Help Centre.

Chair of the centre, Frank Woolley, appeared before council to explain the centre's aims and objectives.

Woolley told council the aim is to eliminate family violence and domestic conflict.

"We feel our ideas are new to the county and fill a great need," he said. "We feel that family violence is a serious threat to our society."

He asked council for any suggestions on how the county could be better served in this respect.

Woolley added that the group is making a moral and practical stand against violence and he asked for the county's support.

Underserved area support

A resolution supporting Minden's bid for underserved area designation was submitted by the St. Joseph's Hospital and Health Care Community Advisory Committee last month.

The resolution asks that "full inpatient services be reinstated when appropriate and as soon as possible at the Minden Hospital and that 24-hour per day seven days per week emergency service be reinstated at such time that the doctor complement meets the criteria defined by the Community Advisory Board and approved by the St. Joseph board on March 7, 1995."

Bark Lake sale extension?

County council passed a resolution requesting that the Ontario Realty Corporation delay the June 6 deadline for response on the sale of the Bark Lake Camp for 30 days to allow the community more time and a new government an opportunity to review Bark Lake's status.

Warden's banquet

Haliburton County will have a Warden's Banquet in 1995.

Council moves toward county Strategic Plan cause of a lack of a major transportation route from the Greater Toronto Area.

County council's role in the future, as seen by council members is:

- To provide a window for local taxpayers
- Protect and maintain the environment
- Hold the line on taxes
- Market the county and develop the economic base

- Take an active role in health care
- Provide a good county road system
- provide other county-wide services such as library, land division, social services, land use planning and homes for the aged in the most cost effective manner

- Give direction to staff without encroaching on day-to-day operations.

After breaking into three groups with each group coming up with its own vision statement, the three statements were then evaluated and portions of each were formulated into one proposed County of Haliburton Vision Statement, which reads as follows:

To maintain and enhance the natural beauty, heritage and culture of this area, while promoting the economy and quality of life that is unique to Haliburton County.

Under the heading "Development of Strategic Objectives", six objectives were identified to support the attainment of the vision.

County restructuring/good business practices topped the list. With that in mind, it was agreed that the county seek out lower tier position on potential amalgamation; set up a task force to examine rationalizing road maintenance and winter servicing on a county-wide basis in conjunction with MTO; Implementing a zero-based budget system in the county; and compare the cost of existing operations to that which is potentially available through the private sector.

Second was County planning. It was proposed that the county undertake a SWOT (Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities and Threats) analysis in 1995, prior to starting a strategic plan for 1996. The county official plan would then be delayed until 1997.

Health care services were next on the list. Council plans to meet with the new executive director of the Acting Health Services Board, Foster Loucks, to determine the role of the board and that of the county with regard to health services.

Waste Management was another topic on the list. An ad-hoc committee is to be formed to examine options. The WACE report will be revisited and, depending on the result of the provincial election, determine if any new course of action is deemed necessary.

Revenue generation was another issue. It was felt that some areas of Crown land should be released for sale to the public and investigating which of these areas should be a priority. They plan to petition the province to make this initiative a reality. Identifying new joint marketing ventures that will enable the promotion of the county as a major tourist attraction were discussed. Other municipalities will be contacted to determine what they have offered employees as incentives to reduce the overall operational costs.

In the area of transportation, the county plans to support the MTO's initiatives to extend Highway 404 in order to provide a more direct route to Haliburton County. Marketing the "air" option of moving goods and people into and out of Haliburton County was also discussed.

Next steps

Assisted by the results of the April 24 visioning workshop, one priority is to finalize the staff organization and job descriptions for the vacant county administrative positions.

The other priority is to immediately conduct an action planning session, in order to confirm for each objective:

- who will be responsible for co-ordination and evaluation;
- what resources must be committed to ensure completion;
- when the activity will occur and scheduled completion date;
- what other stakeholders will be included; and
- determine how each action plan will later complement a full strategic planning process.

Marg Prentice honoured with Kinette Life Membership

Marg Prentice received a Life Membership, the highest Kinette award, at the 35th anniversary celebrations of the Minden Kinette Club. The dinner and award presentation was held at Deer Lodge on May 6.

Prentice is only the second member of the local club to receive a Life Membership. Mabel Deacon was presented with a Life Membership about 10 years ago.

Marg Prentice joined the Kinette Club in 1974. She has a 20-year perfect attendance record. She took a leave of absence from the club last year.

Marg's husband, Tom, has been a member of the Minden Kinsmen Club for 21 years, as well. He was awarded a life membership about five years ago.

"We started within a few months of each other," Marg says.

Marg and Tom's son Jack is keeping up the Kinsmen tradition in the family. He is currently the president of the Minden Kinsmen Club.

Marg received a Kinette Maple Leaf award after her first year with the club and about 10 years ago she received a Diamond Award.

The Maple Leaf Award is presented for a number of accomplishments, including perfect attendance during the first year, being on the executive, chairing a project and bringing in a certain number of new members, among others.

The Diamond Award is similar except that it represents a three-year (consecutive) span and is a lot more involved. The member has to serve as a zone officer, be on the executive for three years and chair several Prentice says the year she was zone officer was another highlight for her.

"I got to visit all the clubs in the zone and I visited other clubs out of the zone too," she said. "You get to meet a lot of people and make friends that way. We met Larry and Norma Amyotte that way and we've been friends ever since. They were at Port Hope and we were at a district convention together when we met for the first time."

She added that there is a lot of satisfaction when she chairs a project and it comes off well and the funds are raised to meet the obligations and goals that have been set.

Among the guests for this special occasion were District 8 Kinette Co-ordinator Fran Jeffries, Larry and Norma Amyotte, both past Zone Officers, who came down from Kirkland Lake for the celebrations, and Barb Crowthers Zone C Kinette Co-ordinator. Several past Kinsmen and Kinettes and members from neighbouring clubs shared in the event.

Life membership is reserved for those who have made exceptional contributions to the organization.

"It means I don't have to pay any dues, but it doesn't mean that I don't have to do any work though," she quipped.

projects.

Prentice says the Diamond Award was a special thrill for her because it was presented by Kinsmen founder Hal Rogers.

Dinner-Auction raises $8,300-plus for Kinmount Heritage Park, Austin Sawmill development project

by Jerry Grozelle

Successful beyond their wildest dreams was how the organizers of the fund-raising dinner and auction for Kinmount's Austin Sawmill/Railway/Parkland Development Project described the April 29 event.

Held at the Galway Hall, the dinner and auction raised more than $8,300, with the receipts from the bar still to be counted.

"We had a lot of good comments from people as they were leaving," said Cheryl Pearson, one of the organizers. "It appeared everyone had fun and enjoyed the evening."

Pearson said that seeing so many members of the community at the event to support the project, enjoying themselves at the same time, was very important to the organizers. She added that the surrounding communities were well represented at the event as well.

"It was really good to see that representation there," she said.

Pearson had praise for auctioneer Calvin Mabee and MC Frank Proctor, calling them "excellent" and "very entertaining" respectively.

"We're so happy with the success of it," Pearson said. "It certainly seemed to go quite smoothly, even with the number of people we had."

The event drew 200 people and a large number had to be turned away. Estimates of the number of people who wanted tickets after the event was sold out range from a couple of dozen to more than 100. It was a sell-out five days prior to the dinner.

More than 120 businesses and individuals donated goods, services, arts and crafts for the live auction, silent auction and raffles.

The committee had set a modest goal of about $3,000 when it was planning the dinner and auction.

"When we counted the money there were a lot of smiles on our faces," Pearson said.

Several other fund-raising events are planned between now and the Thanksgiving weekend. The next big event is the Canoe Festival, which is set for May 28. A Railway Corridor Trek is slated for June 4. The committee will be participating in the Canada Day Festivities on Sunday, July 2. A Duck Race is planned for July 30, followed by the Kinmount Fair on Labour Day Weekend. On September 15 there will be a Family Fun Night and a Bike-A-Thon is set for September 17. Thanksgiving will be the date for the Arts and Crafts Festival.

SOCIAL EVENT: Patrons of the Kinmount Heritage Park/Austin Sawmill Development Project Fundraising Dinner and Auction took the opportunity to socialize while checking out the raffle and auction items. The event raised more than $8,300 for the project. Organizers of the event were delighted with the support from Kinmount area businesses and individuals as well as those from the surrounding communities.

Arrive Alive Week

by Misty Bennett, HHSS student reporter

Last week was Arrive Alive Week and the HHSS chapter of OSAID (Ontario Students Against Impaired Driving) sponsored many activities within the school to promote the event.

Arrive Alive Week is observed nationally with high schools all over the country marking the occasion.

Activities organized by the OSAID members were planned for the lunch hour every day last week.

Monday a non-alcoholic drink-mixing contest was held. This event allowed students two minutes to concoct the best-tasting drink from a large variety of liquids provided. Drinkable substances that were available for mixing ranged from Worcestershire sauce to Koala Springs carbonated fruit juices and nearly everything in between. The taste testing panel was comprised of four extremely brave teachers who promised to be unbiased in their taste tests. Winners were presented with gift certificates from D & S Discount Store in Minden and Pizza Den and Video City in Haliburton. All gifts were donated by the businesses.

Tuesday was BYOB (Bring Your Own Banana) Day. OSAID members built ice cream sundaes, around the banana, all for the price of one dollar. The ice cream was donated by Kawartha Dairy and the toppings donated by IGA and Valu-Mart, both Minden and Haliburton stores.

A second BYOB Day was planned for Wednesday but had to be postponed until Friday due to inclement weather.

Minnow races were held on Thursday. Students could sponsor a fish at 25 cents per entry, with prizes being awarded for the fish which swam the water-filled eaves trough course the fastest.

A Bulletin Board of Life was also planned for Thursday. OSAID member Kim Harding states, "We asked people to write down their experiences with drunk driving." These comments will be displayed on the OSAID bulletin board for the students to read.

Friday was the second BYOB Day and Teacher Dress Down Day as well. Teachers were permitted to escape their ties and skirts for a little fashion freedom. In exchange for the more casual approach, teachers were asked to make a donation to the OSAID efforts.

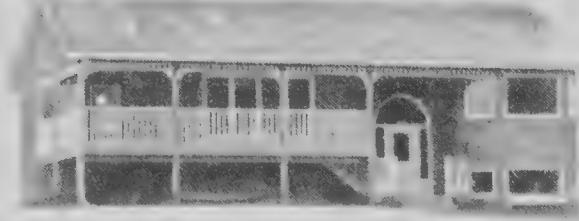

"The money that is raised (through these activities) will be used for next year's activities and will assist us in sending OSAID members to the Provincial Conference" states Harding.

Best of luck and continued success to OSAID. You're doing a great job!

O'Reilly addresses Justice Committee

Victoria-Haliburton MP John O'Reilly appeared before the House of Commons Standing Committee on Justice and Legal Affairs last Thursday to present his views on the controversial gun control Bill (C-68).

Following are the highlights of O'Reilly's comments to the committee:

"In order to express my feelings and the impact of this bill on the rural area of Victoria-Haliburton, I would require more than the five minutes allocated, so I will capsize my comments but supply you with evidence in my package which you have in front of you.

My riding is a total rural riding, but it has a Toronto area influence. From the east side of Lake Simcoe and including a large part of the Trent Canal system, to the Highlands of Haliburton, many people come to our riding to relax, cottage, fish, hunt, swim boat and all the things people do to help enjoy life.

Bill C-68 has driven a wedge between rural and urban Members of Parliament, but is also the topic of heated conversation in every area of my riding. No other issue has caused so much protest in Victoria-Haliburton, including the hated GST.

The protest includes over 5,000 letters, postcards and faxes to my office -- not including phone calls. People who are against gun control include:

The Chief of Police of Lindsay (the only town -- 18,000); The Victoria County Police Association; 90 per cent of all the municipal councils have passed resolutions stating that they object to C-68, in particular, forced registration and criminalization.

Who does this bill target and who is the Justice Department looking for?

The facts are clear to me that if we wanted to identify present gun owners it would be easy:

1. Handguns have been registered since 1934;

2. Let us assume that farmers have a gun, or a couple of them as part of their standard equipment for predatory animals and rodents;

3. Hunters have to purchase a hunting license to hunt game and fowl, so they are already on a computer file in provincial ministry departments;

4. All new long gun sales since 1991 are subject to a registration record at the point of purchase;

5. Safe storage, trigger locks and FACs for ammunition are already in place in this country.

Who are we looking for?

Can we not separate criminals on one side and law-abiding, God-fearing, taxpaying people who own a gun for legitimate purpose on the other side?

Treatment should be quite different for both.

A large majority of rural Canada is in opposition to this bill -- including myself. Why?

I have completed two surveys of my riding -- the results show that approximately 70 per cent of the people who responded to my survey (3,000 replies) are opposed to Bill C-68.

On the coldest Sunday this past winter, (with a football game on TV) a crowd of 1,500 people came out to a gun rally in the high school in Haliburton. They object to becoming criminals because of their way of life. They are not all members of the Reform Party. In the last election, I won nearly all polls in Haliburton County. It was a promise from me that I would oppose this type of legislation and I continue to oppose the two items -- forced registration and criminalization.

A proposal of voluntary registration would be more palatable to the people of Victoria-Haliburton. People who respect the law -- also abide by the law. A simple system of voluntary registration through the provincial associations (Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters) would be sufficient.

Victoria-Haliburton is home to:

- the immediate past president of the Ontario Cattlemen's Association, who opposes Bill C-68;

- Executive members of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, who oppose Bill C-68;

- President of the Responsible Gun Owners of Ontario, who appeared before this committee;

- President of the Military Re-enactment Society, who are severely restricted from holding historical events;

- The Cadet Corps has had to revert to old-style .303s because their rifles are not legal because of Bill C-68;

- The staff of our local museums now have to obtain FACs to remain employees of a museum because of a display of muskets;

- Commonwealth Games medal winners and the president of the Ontario Small Bore Rifle Association from the riding of Victoria-Haliburton are opposed.

In closing, Mr. chairman and committee members, I ask you to consider recommending changes to this bill, so that rural members of Parliament from all parties, have their concerns taken into consideration.

Look at the record of members who showed their disapproval by being absent on second reading, but who must now make a decision that will affect their ability to represent all the population in their riding. There were 47 Liberals who were not in the House of Commons for second reading and without the support of the Bloc Quebecois, this bill would have trouble surviving."

I can't read.

Crime prevention comes in many forms

by Andrew Milne

"When we're talking about elder abuse, we're very seldom talking about physical violence against the elderly — that's not to say it doesn't happen. We do see physical abuse of the elderly, we do see sexual assault against the elderly, but it's the least common form of abuse. The most common form of abuse is probably no surprise — it's financial abuse."

That's Marianne Knight, of the elder abuse committee of Victoria County, speaking April 27 at the invitation of the Kinnmount area community policing association. Knight, along with vice-principal Paul Doiron of Fenelon Falls Secondary School, Constable Frank Sokol of the OPP, and Betty Worsley of the Victoria West Community Policing Committee, spoke at a meeting on community crime prevention hosted by the association.

Police associations and community based crime prevention aren't an entirely new idea. But recently, as Sokol explained to the crowd April 27, professional police forces have been finding that it is both unrealistic and ineffective to deal with the solving and prevention of crime independent of society at large. Thus, this move back to what is really an older idea — communities looking out for themselves, and taking responsibility among themselves for keeping communities safe and orderly.

"I remember we used to drive up and down main street in our patrol cars," said Sokol. "It was always 'I'm the cop. I solve the crimes.' Truth is, it doesn't work very well that way. You people out there know this community. You notice things we might not."

Thus, meetings like this one. Knight spoke to the elderly about the need for them to watch out for themselves, not so much to be untrusting as to be alert, and vigilant. Isolation often contributes to the abuse of the elderly, says Knight — as the elderly begin to perceive from reports in the media that society is becoming more violent, they tend to keep to themselves more, stay home more, and this means they become less well informed about what is happening in society — more vulnerable to phenomena such as fraudulent telemarketing schemes. She also warned the elderly that quite often, it is the people they are closest to who will prove more dangerous to them — parents abused financially by their child will have difficulty facing this fact, as they feel that their children would do such things, they must have failed as a parent.

She concludes that the elderly need to keep informed, keep in touch with each other, and learn to stick up for themselves against abuse.

Doiron spoke about initiatives taken in the schools to teach students that violence is not an acceptable method of conflict resolution — and that there are others. Says Doiron, "We have to ensure that as part of the youngsters' curriculum as they come through the system from junior kindergarten to OAC classes, they get opportunities throughout their education to learn how to interact with one another in non-violent ways — learn how to curb their temper — learn how to de-escalate situations so they do not wind up being violent."

Marianne Knight of the Elder Abuse Committee of Victoria County addresses a meeting of the Kinnmount Area Community Policing Association.

Answering a question from the audience however, Doiron said that as yet there is no specific program in place to ensure that students get such training. There are lessons in various courses — in History and other social science related courses, for example — that contribute to such an understanding, but there is no guarantee the students will take a curriculum that will ensure they will hear these lessons.

Doiron also noted that students get inconsistent messages from society about violence. We tell them they can't fight in school, he says. Should they do so, we suspend them. But then at the hockey game, if someone throws a punch he's a hero. What then, do students conclude from this?

Trent-Severn waterway report

The past winter created some unusual water conditions mostly due to the wettest January in many years. In Peterborough it was the wettest since records began in 1866. This was followed by two and a half months of much lower than normal precipitation. Despite storing about half of the January inflow, the lakes filled very slowly because the spring was so dry.

The Kawartha's carry a small surplus of water as the lock operation season begins on Friday, May 19. This should help make levels of all the lakes a little higher later in the season.

The Haliburton lakes averaged 95.4% on May 15, which was very close to the 20 year average of about 96% for that date.

(The Trent-Severn Waterway report is prepared by Parks Canada and is provided throughout the boating season to keep area property owners informed about changes in water levels on Haliburton Highlands lakes and rivers.)

Ontario Breast Screening Program

New clinic available to local women

If you are over 50 years of age and free of breast cancer, the Ontario Breast Screening Program (OBSP) wants you!

A woman's risk of developing breast cancer increases with age. Screening for breast cancer is, at present, the only way of detecting the disease at an early stage.

The Ontario Breast Screening Program screens women over 50 every two years by mammography and physical examination of the breasts by a nurse examiner.

OBSP also teaches breast self-examination and follow-up.

No doctor's referral is necessary.

This new program is open to women in the Haliburton County, North Victoria and Peterborough counties area, through St. Joseph's Hospital and Health Centre in Peterborough. You can obtain an appointment by calling the hospital: 705-740-8166 Monday to Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m..

The OBSP clinic is located at the Medical Out Patient Department, 384 Rogers Street, Peterborough.

Ross Memorial Hospital: doing more with less

Have you ever wondered what a day in the life of the Ontario hospital system might be like?

On a typical day in this province:

- 34,000 patients are in hospital beds
- 84 percent of all hospital beds are occupied
- 1500 in-patient surgery procedures are performed
- 2000 day surgery procedures are performed

What's remarkable about these figures is that hospitals are now treating more people in shorter periods of time. For both Ross Memorial and the province as a whole, nearly 60 percent of all hospital surgery is now done on an out-patient basis. Some procedures, which previously required a stay in the hospital, are now frequently performed as day surgery. Removal of gall stones and cataracts, for example, can now be performed in this way. These patients are treated and go home on the same day.

And for those who are admitted as in-patients, often their hospital stay is now significantly reduced. In fact, the average length of stay is presently about seven days for Ontario's acute care hospitals, and about 6 days for Ross Memorial.

While bed closures have not occurred at Ross Memorial, the fewer number of in-patients has permitted hospitals across the province to close more than 8000 beds over the past five years. That doesn't mean that hospitals are any less busy. In fact, they're caring for more patients today than ever before. It means the way hospitals deliver their services is changing.

While patients still receive high quality care, the continuing trends to out-patient services, shorter stays, and fewer beds have made hospitals very different places than they were a few years ago.

Hospitals have also changed in order to become more efficient. Provincial funding for their operating budgets has been flat-lined for much of the 1990s, and hospitals therefore have had to do more with less.

On an annual basis, Ontario's hospitals now care for over one million in-patients. There are 14 million visits to hospital emergency departments, out-patient clinics, and day surgery facilities. And hospitals perform more than one million surgical operations. Similarly, Ross Memorial treats over 6400 in-patients annually; performs over 3600 surgical operations, and sees over 50,000 visits in Emergency, After-Hours Clinics and other out-patient clinics in the course of a year.

In spite of spiralling costs and growth pressures, hospitals are meeting the challenge of providing quality care to Ontario patients even though their budgets have been reduced.

What are some of the other ways in which Hospitals are doing this? Well, many of the changes have also been possible because of new medical techniques, drugs, technologies, and sophisticated hospital management practices. For example, tests are now often completed at a clinic several days before scheduled surgery. And many surgical procedures are now less intrusive, and therefore less traumatic for the patient.

Teams of various health care professionals work together in hospitals to ensure that services are coordinated. Patients are also involved in taking greater responsibility for their well-being through exercise, diet and healthy lifestyles. And today, the goal of chronic care, rehabilitation and psychiatric services is to attempt to return as many patients as possible to a healthy and independent life in the community.

But there's a limit to what hospitals can do individually. That's why more than 150 hospitals and other health care organizations in this province are currently involved in 53 restructuring projects. Hospitals are now looking beyond their own walls...working with others to find collective improvements and efficiencies for the benefit of their patients in a time of economic constraints.

There's no question that this will involve some tough decisions. But it's imperative that our public resources be used wisely in order to maintain the quality of care that Ontarians expect.

Bus tour includes Gelert

Monday, Wednesday and Thursday started on the right foot. Fitness was the thing those three mornings. In the afternoon there was residents council.

Tuesday morning Pastor Fast conducted chapel service. He played his guitar and sang for the folks. Thanks Jim. There was a memorial service for the late William Kennedy.

After lunch Dottie, Phyllis and I assisted the residents with the Mother's Day decorations. In the evening Pearl and Corinne gathered folks together for cards.

Wednesday morning the folks boarded the bus for a trip to Gelert. They visited the J. Francis farm. Doris drove, Janice Rachar and Nancy Prentice assisted Doris with the loading of the residents. In the evening Kathleen and Earl entertained with music and song.

Thursday afternoon the Minden Lionesses put on a lovely tea party. Assisting were Rev. Burgess, Muriel Harrington, Pat Scott and Barb Hembruff.

Friday morning the folks folded serviettes in the tuck shop. The Country Jam entertained for happy hour and we had a great turn out. The musicians included Lloyd Madill, Al Blanchard, Neal Howe, Rachael Fearrey, Marilyn Giles, Julie Chalmers and Brad Watt. Brad is from our area but now lives in Kingston. Al Blanchard taught him to play guitar years ago when he was just twelve years old.

Lilian Harrison planted dahlia bulbs in the home gardens. She is anxious to get her tomato plants in.

Saturday Kathleen

Owen played the keyboard for the folks.

Sunday the dinner tables were decorated with all the crafts we made. It was very colourful and cheery. It was worth all our efforts for Mother's Day. In the afternoon Estella Burch continued reading.

In the evening Rev. Burgess delivered the sermon.

Monday through Friday Janice gathers folks in the chapel at 3:30 pm and reads to them. This is something new Doris is trying.

We welcome our new resident. Greata Reeds came from Burnt River to Hyland Crest. We wish her a long, healthy happy stay in the home.

Birthday greetings this week go to Lucille Clarke and Mary Eaton.

I would like to thank Father Sal Raborar for coming to visit folks at the home. He is from the Minden and Kinmount parishes.

Getting your name on the voter's list

Eligible individuals whose names are not on the preliminary list of electors prepared for the 36th Ontario General Election may have their names added during the revision period running from Thursday, May 18 to Wednesday, June 7 -- the day before election day.

As well as adding names to the list, corrections and deletions from the preliminary list prepared by enumeration may also be made during this period.

To be eligible to vote, individuals must be 18 years of age on election day, Canadian citizens at the time of voting, and residents of Ontario for the six months prior to election day.

In urban areas, electors must have their names on the list of electors or hold a certificate to vote. Such a certificate is provided by the Returning Officer or a revision assistant to individuals added to the list after enumeration. The certificate must be presented by the individual at his or her polling place to receive a ballot and to vote.

In rural areas, electors who are not on the list on election day, or who do not have a certificate to vote, may still vote if:

- they take an oath or affirm that they are eligible, and
- they are accompanied by an elector who is on the list for the same polling division and who is prepared to vouch for them.

Electors whose names are not on the list, who require corrections or deletions to their name on the preliminary list, should contact the Returning Officer in their electoral district. The Returning Office can be easily identified by an Elections Ontario sign and is open during posted office hours.

Elections Ontario advertisements in daily and weekly newspapers (look for ad in this edition) throughout the province will provide telephone numbers to call for election information. For general election information call 1-800-668-2727.

Telephone Directory Assistance will also be able to give the number of the appropriate Returning Officer if individuals ask for "Elections Ontario" and provide the name of their electoral district.

ANNUAL REPORT

THE MINDEN HOSPITAL FUND

The Minden Hospital Fund was established by the Rotary Club of Minden in 1988 to provide a mechanism for those wishing to set aside funds for the replacement of the present Minden Hospital. All monies contributed to the fund are placed in a special account. The rules governing this account allow for the money to be withdrawn to assist in the replacement of the present hospital or for the purpose of providing for the growth and expansion of the facilities of the existing Minden Hospital.

The Rotary Club of Minden has agreed to underwrite the cost of operating this special fund and ensure ongoing management of the dollars entrusted to the fund. Six trustees, three Rotarians and three members of the community, have been appointed to oversee the management of this money.

Over the past year many memorial donations have been made to this fund. In addition, other substantial donations have been made by Nashville North, operating as "Cowboys That Care", the Minden Legion Branch 636, and the Ontario Hydro Charitable Trust Fund. Several large donations have also been made by individual contributors. Anyone wishing to make a donation to be used for the stated purposes of this fund may do so at any time.

As of July 1st, 1993, the fund has received status as a registered charity. Accordingly, official income tax receipts can be issued for your donation if requested.

In establishing this fund, it was decided that an Annual Report would be made to the community. The following report has been approved by the committee overseeing the fund: Chairman, Brian F. Adamson; Secretary Treasurer, Russ Fair; Trustees, Tara Lowe, Bill Roodenburg, Bob Beeney and Russ Paul.

This report covers the period from January 1, 1994 to December 31, 1994.

The world's forests: who's responsible?

Environmentalists in industrial nations of the north are concerned about the fate of tropical rainforests that have been labelled the "lungs of the planet" and the "wellsprings of biodiversity".

Here in Colombia, Latin Americans demand to know why they are expected to save the forests when countries in the north haven't protected theirs. In the debate over vanishing forests, the people who live in them are often forgotten.

Travelling through the Choco rainforest along mud tracks, one can't help but wonder why magnificent forests like this are being traded for squalid towns and villages of impoverished people and biological deserts of scrawny cattle grazing on barren hills. Is there no other way to create income for the human residents while preserving the forest ecosystem?

According to the French botanist Francis Halle, there is. He has spent his life studying plant growth in the canopy of tropical rainforests. When I ask him whether we know enough to cut down the likes of the Choco and regrow it, he replies, "Absolutely not."

He points out that a tree plantation is not a forest and that rapidly growing species such as eucalyptus or pine, imported from other parts of the world, seldom perform as expected. Halle says ideas developed from northern temperate forests are inappropriate for the tropics where vegetation and soil are completely different.

The secret to the resilience and productivity of a tropical rainforest is its tremendous variety of living forms. Biodiversity is the key to everything. "There's no need for pesticides in a tropical rainforest," Halle says, "because target species of a parasite are so widely dispersed that a parasite cannot readily spread."

As long as the forest is intact, people can cut into it as the indigenous inhabitants have for thousands of years, and the cut will heal. But if the clearing is large, then like a spider web that loses too many threads, the system collapses.

Throughout tropical countries of Africa, South America and southeast Asia, Halle finds a sophisticated human practice called agroforestry (AF) that has sustained communities for hundreds, if not thousands, of years.

Halle has observed carvings on Indonesian temples depicting AF practices about 1000 AD.

AF requires a profound knowledge of plants that can be used for a variety of needs. Useful plants are collected from intact primary forests and deliberately planted in a surrounding AF buffer zone. Here one finds small shrubs, medicinal plants and large trees that yield wood, edible leaves and fruits.

Fifty per cent of the biodiversity in the primary forest can be found in an AF buffer zone. In fact, says Halle, it has only been in the past century that foresters recognized that the AF buffer zone is human created and not a natural forest.

Domesticated animals are grazed in the buffer zone where the huts and villages are also located. The primary forest remains intact to provide new material during collecting expeditions.

Halle says "Agroforesters are true capitalists; their capital is biological and it is constantly growing." Usually, they live off the interest but when they are confronted with an emergency, they may harvest more than they usually take, sure in the knowledge that over time, the forest will grow back. Halle's description of agroforestry makes one wonder why it isn't being pushed everywhere as a sustainable alternative to massive clearing of tropical forests.

Halle's explanation is: "AF is always local and small scale. People are constantly coming out of the villages with baskets of fruits, vegetables, meat and plant products for trade or sale, but that doesn't yield the large and quick profits that governments and multinational companies want."

Since all useful organisms are harvested from the buffer zone, the primary forest is protected as a priceless source of genetic material. Communities practicing AF don't need outside help or expertise because they depend on their own indigenous knowledge that has been tested by time.

Halle observes that practitioners of AF are always women. Men may be recruited to cut down trees or lift heavy things but women are in charge. He believes this reflects women's concerns with food and children's health. "Large-scale monoculturing seems to be more of a male impulse, while diverse, small-scale ventures seem more feminine," Halle says.

AF exposes the insanity of destroying tropical forests for a one time only recovery of cash. It rests on the fundamental capital of nature which, if protected, can sustain communities and ecosystems indefinitely. But that flies in the face of the current suicidal path of global economics which glorifies human creativity and productiveness above all.

CARDS OF THANKS

Many thanks to everyone who sent me cards, flowers, telephone calls and for your prayers and your love during my four weeks in hospital and since I have returned home. Your kindness will be cherished and long remembered. My love to all,
Molly McCarthy.

We would like to extend a sincere thank you to all our family, friends and neighbours who expressed their concern and best wishes for the entire family during Jeremy's hospital stay. The calls, cards, flowers, gifts and prayers were overwhelming. The tremendous amount of continued support for all of us is truly appreciated.

A special thank you must be expressed to Dr. Tina Stephenson and the emergency staff at the Haliburton Hospital; to Shannon Feir for her care and compassion during the flight to Toronto; to all the ambulance attendants and flight crew (in Haliburton, Lindsay and Toronto); to OPP Constable Mark Davis for his comfort on the scene; to Dr. James Waddell, his surgical staff and the nurses on the 4th floor at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto; and to our friends for taking care of the homefront while we were away. Special appreciation goes to Jeremy's friend Tom Neville for staying by his side.
Jeremy Durkin and family.

We should like to thank everyone for being there when a hug and kind words were needed, the phone calls and cards. Special thanks to Dr. S. Warsi and staff at Minden, Dr. Gail Darling, Dr. N.E. Marcon, Maria Cirrocco, Christine Ross and the rest of the research team at Wellesley Hospital, Toronto. Doctors and staff at the Haliburton Hospital. IN MEMORIAM

McKELVEY: In loving memory of my husband Irvin who passed away May 28, 1992. Gone are the days we used to share But in my heart you are always there The gates of memory will never close, I miss you more than anyone knows. Lovingly remembered always by wife Jean.

McKELVEY, Irvin. In loving memory of a dear father who passed away May 28, 1992. What I'd give if I could say Hello Dad in the same old way, To hear your voice, see your smile, To sit with you and chat a while. So you who have a father Cherish him with care, For you'll never know the heart-ache Till you see his vacant chair. Sadly missed and never forgotten, Betty and Alfred.

McKELVEY, Irvin. In loving memory of a dear grandfather who passed away May 28, 1992. We often sit and think of you, The things you used to say and do, Although we smile and make no fuss, No one misses him more than us. Sadly and always remembered, Janet, Tracy and Derek.

McKELVEY: In loving memory of our dear grandfather Poppy Irv who passed away May 28, 1992. His smiling way and pleasant face Are a pleasure to recall, He had a kindly word for each And died beloved by all. Some day we hope to meet him, Some day, we know not when, To clasp his hand in the better land, Never to part again. Sadly and always remembered by Jeff, Carleen, Robbie, Lesley, Jarett and Wanda.
